About Robin

I have been working in the content and media production for more than a decade. I had worked as a project manager and later on as a production director for several years. After some time I felt the need for a change and started working as a freelancer. Majority of my clients are from the lifestyle and the fashion field.

The most essential part of my work is to understand clients needs, to be able to deliver a product of the best quality. In this digital era, it goes hand in hand with a well curated and relevant digital presentation which has to be coherent with the brand and its philosophy.
